

Hosta Information – The Premier Garden Plant

Hosta – (Plantain Lily)- long lived, low maintenance plant grown primarily for its foliage. Bell-shaped flowers on strong stalks are held above the foliage. Hosta can be used as a specimen plant or massed as a groundcover. Hostas come in a variety of sizes, color combinations and shapes. They prefer moist, well-drained soil, but tolerate just about anything. Gold leaf varieties require half day sun to develop their color. Most varieties of hosta will burn in full sun. Morning sun is preferred. On some hosta, the individual characteristics are often not evident until they reach maturity.

Size - Height	(not including the flower stalk)
Mini -	Up to 6"
Small -	7" to 10"
Medium -	11" to 18"
Large -	19" to 28"
Extra Large -	Over 28"

Leaf Color

- Blue Sensitive to strong sunlight – burns easily. Blue hostas do require protection from the sun. The leaves have a waxy coating, and in full, hot sun, this waxy coating melts, making the leaf appear green and subjects it to sunburn. Do not plant in full sun.
- Gold Performs best with ½ day sun. Yellow varieties with thicker leaves do show more sun tolerance.
- Green Some varieties show good sun tolerance.
- Variegated Exceptional when combined with solid colors. Some varieties with white in their leaves will sunburn easily.

Sun Tolerant Hosta

These varieties have shown good sun tolerance. Ideal growing conditions for most hosta is to have morning sun and high filtered afternoon shade. However, some hosta will grow fine in full sun if given adequate moisture to keep them from drying out. Water profusely and keep them heavily mulched. The leaves of hosta plants are usually much larger than other plants – thereby releasing more moisture as a result. Full morning sun is much better than full afternoon sun.

Hostas that are thick-leaved, yellow leaves or fragrant, typically tolerate sun conditions better than others. There are, however, always exceptions. If you have a different variety that is loving the sun – great. In very hot and dry areas – all hosta should be planted in some shade. If planted in really hot and dry conditions, hosta can go dormant in the summer. Too much sun will result in burned leaves, starting on the outside of the leaves and progressing inward.

All hosta need at least some sun to photosynthesize. Some hosta may live in full shade, but they will not thrive and mature.

Slug Tolerant Hosta

These varieties have shown good resistance to damage from slugs, typically larger plants and thicker foliage are less susceptible to slugs.

Fragrant Hosta

These varieties have flowers that are fragrant. An added bonus for some hosta flowers – they will attract butterflies!

Hosta of the Year

With the increasing number of hosta cultivars being introduced each year, it is increasingly difficult for nursery owners and gardeners to choose just the right hosta for their sales areas and gardens. To this end, the American Hosta Growers Association established the AHGA Hosta of the Year in 1996. Award winners are hosta that are good garden plants in all regions of the country, are widely available and in sufficient supply and retail for about $15 in the year of selection.
